Course Description:

Catalog description: "Consists of reading and analyzing significant works of literature from the Colonial period through the Romantic period. Requires research paper or several short analytical papers."

Professor's supplementary description: At its deepest level, the purpose of this course is to teach critical thinking skills which may be applied in any walk of life; more immediately, the course gives the student a historical grounding in the periods of literature which have helped form our culture and thus have helped form us as well. How well the first purpose is accomplished depends on how much effort and thought the student invests in the second. Students will also apply the principles of effective writing studied in ENGL 1301 and 1302. Compared to ENGL 1302, our study of literature will be a more systematic, historical exploration of major works of our nation from the literature of early America to that of the mid-nineteenth century.

Prerequisites/Corequisites: ENGL 1302 or its equivalent

Scans: SCANS 1, 2, 9

Course Objectives (Learning Outcomes):

Course Policies:

- 1.0 Absence is not an excuse for coming to the next class meeting unprepared. Work submitted late for any reason, including absence, may be penalized five points per weekday (or in shorter terms, ten points per weekday) at my sole discretion. If absent, contact another student or me to learn of upcoming assignments.
- 2.0 Major tests missed must be taken within one week in the Testing Center, after which the grade becomes a zero. The penalty taking the test late is five points per weekday (not per class meeting).
- 3.0 Daily assignments which depend on timeliness to be effective (e.g., pop quizzes) may not be made up. The grade is a zero; the lowest daily grade is dropped.
- 4.0 No student can pass this course without completing the final exam. Any student missing the final exam may receive a grade of F for the entire course.
- 5.0 Cell phones and pagers must be set on silent and put away. Repeated violations may be considered chronic disruption of class and dealt with as such.
- 6.0 As adults, you may leave the room without asking permission, but students who abuse this privilege will be considered to be disrupting class. You are encouraged to see to your needs either before class or during formal breaks (in longer evening sections).
- 7.0 Chronic class disruption may result in a student being dropped from my course. This is a last resort and would occur only after repeated warnings, the last warning being delivered in writing.
- 8.0 Plagiarism (submitting work not one's own) in any form is not allowed. Various forms, intentional and unintentional, will be discussed. The penalty for intentional plagiarism is an F for the course.

Course Requirements (Lectures, Assignments and Assessments):

- 1.0 Careful reading of the selected literature, with the understanding that while this receives no direct credit, it is the foundation for all graded assignments;
- 2.0 Participation in class, including attendance, timely arrival, and discussion (5 % of the course grade);
- 3.0 Various short daily quizzes and other daily assignments (10 % of the course grade). Most quizzes will be pop quizzes over assigned readings and thus cannot be made up (see Course Policies);
- 4.0 Three unit tests (15 % each). In general, the tests consist of two sections: an objective section, usually short answer questions, followed by a section of essay questions which call for more thorough, well developed responses. All questions focus on the course concepts and assigned readings, all of which are discussed in class;
- 5.0 One three-to-five-page analytical essay (20 %). In this essay the student applies the course concepts and terminology to his or her own life according to specific instructions given;
- 6.0 A comprehensive final exam covering all historic periods studied (20 %). The final exam consists of two sections, the first being similar to that in previous tests. The second section is a formal essay of three pages or more, choosing from several topic options, and written in class during the final exam period. Students may bring an outline which they prepare beforehand.

Summary of Assignments & Activities

Item Name	Type	Description	Time Frame
Unit One	The Colonial Period to the end of the 17 th Century (1600's)	Unit One first introduces several course concepts which are useful throughout the course. Various works are studied, with most literature in this period being journals, diaries, and poetry. There are two major assignments for Unit One: the self-focused analytical essay and the first unit test.	Unit One usually spans roughly five to six weeks of the course. This time frame is dependant on variables such as the pace of student learning, which may also change the list of readings. All specific due dates are announced in class.
Unit Two	18 th Century (1700s): Neo-classicism	Unit Two continues to use most of the same concepts and terminology from Unit One. This unit focuses primarily on letters and expository writing from the Revolutionary War and the founding of this country, including the Declaration of Independence. The one major assignment for Unit Two is a unit test.	Unit Two usually lasts about five to six weeks of the course.
Unit Three	Early to Mid-19 th Century: Romanticism	Unit Three continues to build on course concepts and terminology, showing how these change from the earlier periods. This unit focuses more on literature of the imagination (especially fiction) as this sort of American writing begins to mature. The one major assignment due in Unit Three is the third unit test.	Unit Three lasts the remainder of the semester, usually about four to five weeks of the course.
